

Talking about mental health: 4 tips for parents of teens and young adults

Mental health is an important topic anytime. During the pandemic, which 58% of teens say has affected their mental health,<sup>1</sup> it may be even more so.

For some families, talking about mental health may be an everyday occurrence. For other families, it may be a new topic, and it may feel a little awkward at first. But the more you talk about it, the more comfortable it will feel – for you and for them.

If you're wondering how to get started, keep these four tips in mind.

- 1. Remember what being a teen is like. Teenagers are going through a time of change. They may be getting their first job, learning to drive, hanging out with friends more and spending less time with parents. These are all a normal part of development. Social media may also have an impact on teens' lives, making them feel anxious about whether others approve of them, overwhelmed by constant notifications and worried that they're missing out. Frequent Instagram use for young women is also correlated with body dissatisfaction as well as anxiety, depression and low self-esteem.<sup>2</sup>
- 2. Watch for cues. Teens may bring up mental health topics on their own. They might mention what a friend is going through or how they're feeling themselves. It's important to listen, so you don't miss these opportunities.
- 3. Respect differences. There's a good chance you and the teen or young adult in your life will have different opinions about political, social or other topics. While it may be tough, try to stay calm and respect their different views. This can help you build trust and make them more open to talking with you. Instead of lecturing, help your teen plan how to make healthy choices about alcohol and drugs, relationships and other topics they'll face.
- 4. Learn about mental health. While many people have personal experience with depression, anxiety or other mental health concerns, for some people these topics are new. If you aren't familiar with these conditions, educate yourself before you bring them up. Also, know what signs to watch for. If someone is feeling sad or withdrawn for more than a couple of weeks, having severe mood swings, worrying a lot or getting into fights with others, they may be dealing with a mental health issue and need help.<sup>3</sup>

Eating disorders

When people are dealing with overwhelming feelings, they sometimes develop eating disorders. Eating disorders often begin in the teens and early 20s.<sup>4</sup>

Alcohol use

Different cultures have different norms about alcohol. While some countries permit use during the teenage years, others don't allow it until later or ban it completely.

Wondering how to start talking about mental health? Check out these conversation starters you and your family can use together. Download at Here4TN.com.

If you or someone you know have thoughts about suicide, seek help right away. If you or someone you know is in immediate danger, call 911 – or go to the closest emergency room.

To reach a trained crisis counselor, call the 988 Suicide & Crisis Lifeline (previously known as the National Suicide Prevention Lifeline) at 988 or 1-800-273-TALK (1-800-273-8255). You may also text 988 or chat at 988.lifeline.org. The Lifeline provides 24/7 free and confidential support.*

*The Lifeline provides live crisis center phone services in English and Spanish and uses Language Line Solutions to provide translation services in over 250 additional languages for people who call 988.

1. Global Shapers Community, et al. COVID-19 youth survey: Report. cdn.who.int/media/docs/default-source/epi-win/covid-19-survey\_report\_for\_who---final.pdf?sfvrsn=f23bd740\_4\_11\_2021. Accessed September 27, 2021.
2. Sherlock M, Wagstaff DL. Exploring the relationship between frequency of Instagram use, exposure to idealized images and psychological well-being in women. Psychol Pop Media Cult. 2019;8(4):482-490. psycnet.apa.org/record/2018-15210-001.
3. World Health Organization. Depression. who.int/news-room/fact-sheets/detail/depression. September 13, 2021. Accessed December 13, 2021.
4. World Health Organization. Adolescent mental health. who.int/news-room/fact-sheets/detail/adolescent-mental-health. November 17, 2021. Accessed December 13, 2021.

This program should not be used for emergency or urgent care needs. In an emergency, call 911 if you are in the United States, the local emergency services phone number if you are outside the United States, or go to the nearest ambulatory and emergency room facility. This program is not a substitute for a doctor's or professional's care. Due to the potential for a conflict of interest, legal consultation will not be provided on issues that may involve legal action against Optum or its affiliates, or any entity through which the caller is receiving these services directly or indirectly (e.g., employer or health plan). This program and all its components may not be available in all locations and is subject to change without prior notice. Coverage exclusions and limitations may apply.

Optum® is a registered trademark of Optum, Inc. in the U.S. and other jurisdictions. All other brand or product names are trademarks or registered marks of the property of their respective owners. Optum is an equal opportunity employer.

© 2022 Optum, Inc. All rights reserved. WF8233296 222522-082022

